GOLF TOURNAMENT TO BENEFIT FIRST RESPONDERS

The 6th Annual "Best of the Best" First Responders Charity Golf Tournament is set to return on Saturday, June 13, bringing the community together in support of Mesquite's police, fire, and rescue personnel.

The event will take place at Conestoga Golf Club, 1499 Falcon Ridge Parkway, with a 6 a.m. registration and a 7 a.m. shotgun start.

Organized to benefit local first responders, the tournament offers both a day of friendly competition and a meaningful opportunity to give back. Teams of five can sign up for an entry fee of $300 per person, with 40 percent of proceeds going directly to the Mesquite First Responders Charity.

In addition to supporting a vital cause, participants will compete for cash prizes, including $6,000 for first place, $2,500 for second and $1,500 for third. The event is sponsored by Eagles Landing and is expected to draw strong community participation once again.

Those interested in registering a team or learning more can contact organizer Kenny at 775-385-5925 or via email at Kenny@eagleslanding-mgmt.com.

'PET MANIA' CONTEST SUPPORTS ANIMALS IN NEED

The Mesquite Fine Arts Center is inviting the community to get creative for a good cause with its upcoming "Pet Mania" art competition. Hosted by the VVAA Pottery Studio in partnership with the City of Mesquite Animal Shelter, the event blends artistic expression with support for local animals in need.

Pet Mania encourages participants to design and submit food-safe pottery pieces while celebrating the creativity of local artists.

Instead of a traditional entry fee, participants are asked to donate new, unopened dry cat or dog food valued at $15 or more. Organizers emphasize that no cash donations will be accepted, reinforcing the event's mission to directly benefit the animal shelter.

All entries, along with completed forms and donations, must be submitted to the VVAA Pottery Studio by the deadline of Aug. 27 at 2 p.m.

Winners will be selected the following day, Aug. 28, and recognized during an art reception in September.

Two winners will receive prizes, including a $100 VVAA Pottery Studio gift certificate and 30 days of free wheel and roller use.

For details, contact Kathleen Birkholz at 702-443-4878 or kdb313@gmail.com, or Diane Alexanian at 425-949-8440 or DianeAlexanian@yahoo.com.

Community comes together for Earth Day tree planting

Mesquite Monthly

Residents and local leaders gathered at Old Mill Park to celebrate Earth Day with a hands-on effort to make their community a little greener. Volunteers spent the day planting several new trees behind the park's batting cages, contributing to a project that will benefit the area for years to come.

The event highlighted the power of collaboration, with city staff, community members and local organizations all playing a role. Parks Manager Lonnie Dalton, along with Supervisors Miguel Mejia and Chalis Barnum, helped lead the effort alongside a dedicated parks crew whose work ensured the project's success.

A key contribution came from Kim Woolsey and Primex, who generously donated the trees planted during the event. Their support provided the foundation for the day's work and will leave a lasting impact on the park's landscape.

The event also welcomed participation from Nikki Meador, Jodi Johnson and students from the STEAM Center, whose enthusiasm added an extra layer of energy to the day. Their involvement underscored the importance of engaging younger generations in environmental stewardship.

City leadership was also on hand to show their support, including Mayor Jesse Whipple, Councilwoman Karen Fielding and City Manager Becca Shrupp, all of whom joined the community in recognizing the importance of preserving and enhancing local green spaces.

With new trees now taking root, Old Mill Park stands as a growing reminder of what can be accomplished when a community comes together with a shared purpose.

Manta Rays ready to start 2026 swimming season

By Breven Honda

As the summer months arrive, a new season of Manta Rays Youth Swim Team arrives both to compete or learn how to swim.

Taking place at the Mesquite Recreation Center, the Manta Rays swim team is open to ages 7-17.

Lifeguards and swimming teachers are on hand ready to teach the next generation to get in the water, no matter if they're swimming as fast as dolphins or it will be their first time entering the pool.

"I'm pretty excited," said Beau Garrett, who will begin his third season coaching kids. "It's been a long time since we've started meeting about it and started talking about it in March. So, I'm just waiting for the end of the school year and waiting for the beginning of summer for this to start."

For those looking to compete on one of the swimming teams, spots are $150 and for any additional sibling it is $125. The deadline to commit to the team is May 23.

However, in the meantime, kids can attend open swimming from 6:00-7:30 on Mondays and Wednesdays.

For those parents on the fringe about having their child participate on the swim team, open swims is a way to build their curiosity.

"I want them to be there to have fun and to learn," Garrett said. "Coming to open swim is one of the best ways to know if it's worth it for the parents and the kids, because if the parents don't like it, if they don't think that they can commit to it throughout the summer, that's perfectly fine."

Open swims not only give the kids and parents a taste of what the season will be like, but also the coaches to see where the kids are at. The Open swims are completely free of charge to those kids within the age gap, no matter the skill levels.

Once the teams have been finalized, the first practice is slated on the morning of June 1.

For the returning swimmers, one of the goals the coaches want to accomplish is focusing on form, especially when competing in a non-free-style event.

"I think a lot of swimmers that age struggles with is learning the specific techniques of a lot of the strokes," Garrett said. "They are able to do it, but with whether or not they're able to do it right or correctly. Whether it's breaststroke or butterfly or any of the strokes really, just really refining their techniques."

"Speed can only take you so far. Technique is at least half the stroke. So, if you have your technique, then it comes down to your speed and your strength in the water."

As the learning process commences, with the right focus and attention to detail the opportunity for improvement is there to build up to the intermediate or advanced levels.

Especially for Garrett, who participated in Manta Rays when he was younger.

"They start off, usually pretty scared to get in the water," he said. "So at the beginning of the season, they're a little slow. But as they go on throughout the season, whether it's them, using the lane line left because sometimes they're not able to swim a whole 50 yards down the back in our pool."

"For me, when I did this program, it was always awesome to know that I was able to do better each summer. So I think having that feeling and seeing that in the swimmers is pretty rewarding."

Garrett said getting to be part of the swimming teams include the friendships continuing from the classroom to the pool.

"I think they're pretty excited," Garrett said. "Sometimes I see them around town. They're just excited to be with their friends throughout the summer and open swim and get in the water and have some fun."

"Sometimes, we let them choose their lane, so they're able to choose with their friends. We try to play games. Sometimes, we'll use the slide, or we let them choose the workout sometimes, just to keep it more like interactive and entertaining."

> See RAYS, Page 9

Even for those looking to compete for the first time, the kids and coaches alike will provide a welcoming experience.

"If there is a kid like that, either one of us will get in the water with them," Garrett said. "We find that usually helps quite a lot if we get in the water with them. We still have other coaches out, lifeguarding and coaching the rest of kids.

But if one of us are able to go one-on-one with those kids, if they're not having a good time, they're struggling a little bit, or if they're new, we usually try and either get in with them or we pull them over to the side and we walk up and down the side of the pool with them and work with them individually."

Mesquite Senior Games runs successful spring season

By Breven Honda

The 25th Anniversary spring season for the Mesquite Senior Games is officially in the books. Over the course of eight weeks between March and April, seniors aged 50 years and older participated in different sports and activities ranging from bowling to fitness hike and track and field.

"I think they went very well," Mesquite Senior Games Board President Sandy Tudor said. "I compared some of this year's events to past events, and most of them were about the same participation. Some of them were a little bit up. Some of them were a little bit down. But for the most part, I'd say it was a pretty successful season."

Seven of the 15 events took place in April, including the shotgun sports event in Hurricane, Utah. This was one of the first years that the shotgun sports and the target pistol events did not take place at the save venue.

The target pistol event, which took place one week before shotgun sports, took place a couple miles from Mesquite in Bunkerville.

"The biggest change of course was the venue for target pistol, and that worked really well," Tudor said. "I think we'll get a lot more participation, not having to drive to Hurricane, to have the target pistol. We still had shotgun there, and that's okay, because the people that play in one don't play in the other."

In between the target pistol and shotgun sports events was the women's softball tournament. Outside of some logistical planning issue with the field, the tournament was very successful. This year and every two years, the women's softball tournament is a qualifier event for the national senior games.

As a result, there were six teams who not only had a successful tournament, but also moved on to nationals, which will take place in Des Moines, Iowa.

After the softball tournament, the history tour took place. With the new Heritage Park building the Mesquite Senior Games ensure to stop there along the tour.

"It has a lot of plaques and busts and history information in it," Tudor said of Heritage Park. "So what we did this year was we ended up there as we had our lunch."

Cornhole followed one day after the history tour. Taking place in the VIP parking lot behind the Eureka Casino.

Like the other sporting events, medals for gold, silver and bronze were handed out. In addition, the Mesquite Senior Games gave out a special medal for those who got all four bags in the hole in the same turn. Four players – Chuck Werner, David Graybill, Victor Madrid and Gary Graybill – achieved the feat to earn the special medal.

The basketball skills event took place next. The skills challenge event consisted of shots from the free throw and the 3-point line as well as a hot shot event where players make baskets from select spots on the floor.

The free throw event consisted of accuracy with 25 shots. The 3-point contest is just like the one in the NBA with a rack with five ball at five different spots around the arc.

"For the hot shot, basically we put down numbers on the floor," Tudor said. "Number one is a layup. Number two is a little farther away. Number three, four and five are farther away. You get one minute to shoot as much as you want from any of those, and if you make it, you get the number associated with it. So if you make it from number five, you get five points for that."

Then, the track and field event commenced at Virgin Valley High School. Whether it was the running or speed walking events or the jumping and the throwing events, everyone enjoyed their time.

"Track and field the next day was awesome," Tudor said. "We had more competitors in more events than we've had in a couple years."

One of the great traditions every year is having the VVHS track and field athletes take time out of their Saturday to give back

“They love it,” Tudor said on having the high school students help out. “We had one guy who was 91.”

That 91-year-old was Stanley Reed, who participated in the 5K Walk and Run. He finished the event in 47:59 alongside multiple Bulldogs students.

There was a second person in the 90-plus age group that participated. Gerald Chase participated in seven different events: 50 meter run, discus, long jump, shot put, softball throw, standing long jump and the triple jump.

Tudor said competitors like Reed and Chase, exemplify why this organization exists.

“That is the goal of the Senior Games: to keep our seniors active, engaged, and give them a give them something fun to do,” Tudor said. “I think we’ve succeeded on that unquestionably (throughout the entire season).”

The spring slate wrapped up with the golf skills and the golf tournament. As locals know, living in the valley, windy conditions can arise, which happened, especially during the skills competition, primarily the putting contest.

Despite mother nature playing a critical role, the competitors were able to overcome the elements.

“I’ve never found anybody who goes, ‘Oh, I love wind.’ It doesn’t happen,” Tudor said. “Nobody was too happy with the wind, but again, they understand that we’re really good, and there’s a lot we can do, but we can’t do a darn thing about the weather. If it’s hot, it’s not my fault. If it’s a beautiful day, I’ll take credit for it, but that’s about it.”

FINANCIAL FOCUS

What color is your money? Here is a simple way to see your retirement risks

By Ronald Bird

Take your Color Of Money Risk Analysis here: <https://thefinancialhq.com/birdcomra>

The Color of Money Risk Analysis Report helps families visualize their finances in an easy, understandable way. By breaking down your money into “colors,” the report shows:

- Green Money: Low-risk assets that are likely to be available when you need them, such as cash reserves or guaranteed income streams.

- Yellow Money: Moderately risky investments that could fluctuate, like bonds or balanced mutual funds.

- Red Money: Higher-risk assets exposed to market ups and downs, like stocks or certain retirement accounts.

Understanding these categories helps families make informed decisions about how to use their money. For example, relying too heavily on “red money” for regular expenses could create stress during a market downturn, while keeping enough “green money” can provide peace of mind.

The report also highlights strategies that can reduce risk, such as:

- Diversification: Spreading money across different types of investments to reduce overall risk.

- Withdrawal planning: Figuring out which accounts to draw from first in retirement to make savings last longer.

- Longevity planning: Estimating how long your money needs to last and adjusting your plan accordingly.

For many people, seeing their finances this way brings clarity. Some discover that money they thought was safe is actually vulnerable, while other assets could provide more security than expected.

It’s not just about numbers, it’s about real-life planning. The report can help answer questions like: Will I have enough for healthcare? Can I leave a legacy for my family? Am I taking more risk than I realize?

For anyone feeling unsure about the future, taking a few minutes to review your “colors” can be eye-opening and comforting. It’s a simple, educational step toward protecting your lifestyle and enjoying the retirement you’ve worked hard to build.

The Color of Money Risk Analysis Report is free, easy to understand, and designed to help families make informed, confident decisions about their future.

A liberty of the heart

By Juan Pablo Macias

There is something in the human spirit that longs for freedom—a sense that we are made for more. In the coming weeks, our nation will swell with anticipation as we approach the 250th anniversary of the signing of the United States Declaration of Independence.

As parades wind through city streets, we remember those who sacrificed so that we might share in that same spirit of freedom.

Yet this longing is not new. It echoes through history, even in the forums of ancient Rome. In the fourth century, hermits fled to the Egyptian desert, not to escape the world, but to understand it.

Though early Christian persecution had ended and civic freedom prevailed, they recognized that the human heart could still feel bound.

Their insight feels strikingly modern: one can live in a free land and still feel captive to anxiety and distraction—pulled in a dozen directions, yet rarely coming to rest. It raises the question: what does freedom look like in our own lives?

As we celebrate this milestone, perhaps we can hold both together.

The freedoms we enjoy outwardly are remarkable and worth honoring, but they also hint at something deeper: the chance to grow into who we're meant to be.

Sometimes it begins in small ways—a moment of prayer in the midst of a busy day, choosing patience in a tense moment, or simply being present to the people in front of us.

Perhaps freedom is something we keep discovering, not just in what we can do, but in how we choose to live.

And if that's true, then this celebration is more than where we've come from, but about the kind of people we're still becoming, so when the next milestone comes, the next generation inherits a liberty that is both a law of the land and a state of the heart.

Juan Pablo Macias is a seminararian at La Virgen de Guadalupe Catholic Church. The church is located at 401 Canyon Crest Blvd. Call 702-346-7065.
